REVISION OF ARTICLE VIII PAPAGRAPH 2

PRESENTED BY THE PRESIDENCY

"2. The conservation measures referred to in paragraph 1 (f) include the following:

- (a) The quantity of any species which may be harvested in the area in which the Convention applies;
- (b) The designation of regions and subregions based on the distribution of populations of Antarctic marine living resources;
- (c) The quantity which may be harvested from the populations of regions and subregions;
- (d) The designation of protected species;
- (e) The size, age and, as appropriate, sex of species which may be harvested;
- (f) Open and closed seasons for harvesting;
- (a) The opening and closing of areas, regions or subregions for purposes of scientific study or conservation, including special areas for the protection and scientific study of particular species;
- (h) Regulation of the effort employed and methods of harvesting, including fishing gear, with a view to avoid among others undue concentration of harvesting in any region or subregion;
- (i) Such other conservation measures as the Commission considers necessary for the fulfilmer of the objective of this Convention, including measures concerning the effects of harvesting and associated activities on components of the marine ecosystem other than the harvested populations."
